JAAP LEEGWATER, a native of The Netherlands, earned degrees in education and teaching international folk dance. He became fascinated with the irregular rhythms and expressive movements of Balkan dance, studied dance and choreography at the State Choreographic Schools in Sofia and Plovdiv, Bulgaria.

Jaap has done extensive research in Bulgaria on authentic village dances and has collected and recorded many songs and dances from villages in the various ethnographic regions where folklore traditions are still a way of life.

Jaap first became known to American folk dancers in 1980, and he has been teaching dances and playing his flute at camps, festivals and workshops ever since. In his teaching, Jaap's approach combines the physical exercise of working on style and technique with the enjoyment of dancing together, learning about other cultures, and experiencing the natural emotions present in the villagers' dance and music.

Jaap has introduced many well-loved dances to international folk dancers, including Aj Da Idem Jano, Dobrudzanska Pandela, Eleno Morne, Gankino Horo, Joye Male Morne, Karanfil, Kirco na Cardak Sedesa, Madro, Makedonsko, Mari Maritko, Melnik, Opas, Razvivaj Dobro, Rusi Kosi, Siro, Sborinka, Sino Severnjasko Horo, Svornato, Trite Pati, Trakjiska Racenica, and Vlasko.
